THEOLOGY, JUDAISM, RELIGIOUS STUDIES

The subject field of Theology, Judaism and Religious Studies at De Gruyter is marked by its rich variety of topics and a high degree of interdisciplinarity. Our portfolio of titles is renowned for its well established book series and reference works in the field of biblical studies as well as for our editions from the patristic sources and the writings of influential theologians of the modern era. In addition, we offer an extensive Judaic programme and innovative research in the field of religious studies. Ten journals reflect and shape the current discourses of each respective discipline. Our encyclopedias and reference works are essential companions for study and research, extending far beyond theology itself.

STRENGTHS

▶ A long tradition in the field of biblical studies and theology: Two journals for old and new testament scholarship have been in existence for over 100 years; the accompanying book series now extend over 650 volumes

▶ Relevant reference works such as the “Encyclopedia of the Bible and Its Reception” and the “Theologische Realenzyklopädie,” both also available as databases

▶ A continuously expanding programme for critical religious studies and reception history of the Bible with new series such as “Judaism, Christianity, and Islam - Tension, Transmission, Transformation” (JCIT) and “Studies on the Bible and Its Reception” (SBR)

▶ Discussion of forward-looking topics, such as Digital Humanities and Religion and Secularism

“I view De Gruyter as one of the pillars of our scholarly enterprise. Many of us appreciate its longstanding commitment to academic excellence in the historical, comparative, and critical study of religion and the impressive array of titles over the years.”

Prof. Rosalind I. J. Hackett, President of the International Association for the History of Religions (IAHR).
